

HUD's Disparate Impact Proposal: General Tips for Commenters

Make it Personal. When using our commenting portal or any sort of template language, if possible, add a few sentences to make your comment unique to you. Talk about what fair housing means to you and your community. Discuss why protecting all communities from housing discrimination is so critical. Speak from your lived experience. Individualized comments matter!

Use Our Resources! Need inspiration to personalize your comment? Check out the "Resources" tab on the Fight for Housing Justice website. The site has talking points and fact sheets that can help you learn more about HUD's proposal. If there are resources that make a point or use a phrase that resonates with you, don't reinvent the wheel -- add them to your comments!

Tell a Friend (or Five)! After you've submitted a comment, there are other ways you can Fight for Housing Justice. Talk to friends and family members about this HUD proposal and why it's so harmful. Direct them to the resources on our website, and encourage them to submit a comment. Use the campaign hashtag #fightforhousingjustice on social media to get the word out.
